Call Issued for a Convention to Take Steps Looking to Improvement of Religious and Moral Education.

Organization on Basis That Bible Is Unique Revelation From God, Standing for Facts and Not for Any Theories.

Chicago, Ill., Nov 15—A call has been issued for a convention to be held in Chicago in February or March next, to form a national organization for the improvement of religious and moral education through the Sunday school and other agencies The call is issued by "The Council of Seventy," composed of biblical teachers in the leading educational institutions throughout the country

The council is organized "on the basis of a belief that the bible is a unique revelation from God," and strives "in a constructive spirit to investigate the teachings of the bible and to extend its influence among the people' It does not stand 'for any theory of interpretation, or school of criticism or denomination, but for a definite endeavor to promote the knowledge of the word of God as interpreted in the best light of today."

The call for the national convention, which is signed by a large number of college officials, professors and clergymen, sets forth

First—That the religious and moral instruction of the young is at present inadequate, and imperfectly correlated with other instruction in history, literature and the sciences

Second—That the Sunday school, as the primary institution for the religious and moral education of the young, should be conformed to a higher ideal and made efficient for its work by the graduation of pupils and by the adaptation of its material and method of instruction to the several stages of the mental, moral and spiritual growth of the individual

Third—That the home, the day school and all other agencies should be developed to assist in the right education of the young in religion and morals

Fourth—That this improvement in religious and moral instruction can best be promoted by a national organization devoted exclusively to this purpose

The council of seventy has appointed committees to carry out the plans of the convention and it is their desire that every one who is seeking, either individually or in association with others to work out the ideal religious and moral education shall connect himself with the movement. Aside from fifty-two members of the council of seventy and 121 associate members the call for the convention is signed by forty-five presidents and deans of colleges and seminaries, forty chair professors in colleges and seminaries sixty-six Sunday school Young Men's Christian association public school and other workers and eighty-five pastors of churches.

WOULD DISMISS THE CASE

Pennsylvania Road Files Answer to Hearing Charging Excessive Rates on Hard Coal.

Washington D C Nov 15—The freight rates on anthracite coal are declared to be unjust, unreasonable and inequitable in an answer which the Pennsylvania Railroad company filed with the interstate commerce commission today in response to the complaint of William R Hearst of New York against the anthracite coal carrying roads The complaint charged that the rail lines out of the anthracite fields were exacting unjust discriminative rates for the importation of anthracite coal from the Pennsylvania fields to New York, New England, Maryland and the district of Columbia.

The Pennsylvania railroad, the first to answer, makes a general denial of these allegations and points out the differences in the conditions that exists with respect to the anthracite and the bituminous fields. It concludes that a difference in the freight schedule for the two classes of traffic

The transportation features, service and other conditions necessarily incident to the carriage of anthracite coal, according to the answer, are so substantially dissimilar and different from the conditions incident to the transportation of other general traffic in carloads that the freight rates for the latter do not furnish a just or equitable basis of comparison

The answer denies that any discrimination or difference is made as to the cost of demurrage, hostling, etc., of coal at Hoboken between the different shippers of anthracite coal over the Pennsylvania lines, and avers that all shippers are dealt with and treated alike For these reasons the Pennsylvania company asks the commission to dismiss the complaint

GETTING DOWN TO THE FACTS

President Mitchell of the Mine Workers Gives Testimony Before Commission.

Promptly Answers Questions Propounded by Lawyers for the Coal Barons.

MacVeagh Does Not Lose an Opportunity to Place Labor Leader in Bad Light.

Members of Court Pay Close Attention to Statements Made by the Witness.

Scranton, Pa., Nov 15—President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers union occupied the witness stand throughout both sessions of the coal strike commission today for four hours and a half he took the stand five of two of the bill listed attorneys for the coal companies and ended the day with few sorts as a result of the battle David Wilson of New York general counsel for the Delaware & Hudson company and Wayne MacVeagh of Philadelphia, representing the Pennsylvania Coal company and the Hillside Coal and Iron company, were the principal questioners and they put hundreds of questions to Mr Mitchell The look of harmony prevailed between the lawyers and the witness The members of the commission continue to take the same intense interest in everything that is done and frequently intervene with questions in order that they may have a better understanding of what is being said

The afternoon session was taken up mostly in attempts to place Mr MacVeagh's cross examination, which was very long and while he assured Mr Mitchell that he was not trying to make him look bad he made an opportunity to place Mr Mitchell's answers in such a light that it was difficult for him to be anything but a hard man. He took up the demand for an increase in wages and presented the president hard when he asked him if he cared to carry the responsibility of causing the living expenses of the miners to go up because of the increase in wages who would attend to the carrying of the burden if the increase in wages were granted Mr Mitchell replied that subsidies was the method used in Ohio

Colonel Mosby that gallant soldier of the south and special western land agent has issued a report detailing a wholesale land fraud in Nebraska, and, incidentally, has taken steps to prevent the widows of northern heroes from unwittingly being used as tools by land grabbers who are trying to corral the range lands of this state The recent snap in action of Special Agent Lesser of North Platte in the department at Washington and the public announcement of certain covered charges made with the interior department have been the culmination of a series of sensational events, which have attracted attention all over Western Nebraska Whether prosecutions will be made or not is a question, but it is likely that there will be a chopping off of official heads before the smoke has cleared away

That plans have been devised and, to some extent carried out to rob the government of millions of acres of the most valuable grazing lands in what is left of the once great public domain in the western states and territories, and that these flimsy involve wholesale perjury and fraud, there is little doubt, and is alleged to be convincing proof Moreover, positive charge substantially this effect have been on file for more than a year at the office of the secretary of the interior and at the office of the land commissioner at Washington Charges also on file there a report on these matters by Special Agent Mosby of the land department, who was sent on here to investigate them

According to information gathered from trustworthy sources it is said that he has carried out under the very noses of government officials for at least two years in canvass for and enlist the services of all soldiers widows, who for consideration of small amounts of money filed initiated claims and homesteads including the land office fees, taken to land office and proved, there betrayed into making fraudulent final entries and commutations and perjuring themselves in doing it. Great secrecy was observed to the usual formal statement, from which the following is extracted

"I have this location in mind for my exclusive benefit and am not in the power of any person or persons for cultivation, and not either directly or indirectly for the use or benefit of any other person

"I have not made any other application to enter land and that I have not homestead for the purpose of actual settlement and cultivation and for my own use and benefit and for the use and benefit of no other person or persons whomsoever So help me God"

Story of a 'Homesteader.'

The story of one of these alleged homesteaders is the story of all of them, now differing from each other only in the hand fee, amount of money received or in order of the services rendered Mr Mosby, the so woman,

As he says in that summary I was asked to call at a certain city in this city and I was taken to a certain place in the office that he was absent for an hour, which I understood was to give me a chance to talk with the agent or attorney I paid the agent $10 for the land I was to claim, one paper and he said would be back in an hour I was to come home and have no more bother about it until I came up for the final proof I was to receive another $75 He told me to be on hand and I would receive the fee for this on the land or even sooner it and all I had to do was to sign a paper he had and I would attend to the rest Well I did sign a paper and I was to receive $75 and I signed the office He furnished me a ticket and I went to Omaha how and I return on the train I met two other fellows who were going to file on the same business I went home and there I stayed until I received a letter from Omaha by talking to one another we found we had been all treated the same with all of us When we went to Broken Bow we found we had to go to Ord to file and we had to stay in a hotel there we were all together and we had to be sworn and we had to go to the land office and we had to be sworn and we had to go to the land office and we had to be sworn and we had to go to the land office
